

Tarantelle by Johann Burgmuller

At first, I chose this piece because I thought it was about a large tarantula spider. I love scary creepy-crawlies. But then later my mum found out that the title is a type of an Italian dance. So now when I play the piece I think of a spider dancing!

Innocence by Johann Burgmuller

I like this piece because it is a happy piece. It makes me think about myself having lots of fun with my classmates. One of my friends had a ski-holiday recently and when she told the class about it I wished our class could have been there too. With this piece, I imagine the beginning as my classmates & I running up the snow mountain together to get to the top. Then we scramble to put on our boots and ski attire and get our equipment. And everyone's chatting and laughing so loudly because we are so excited and none of us have skied before. Then when everyone's ready we ski down the slopes and the piece ends when we have all reached the finish line together at the bottom of the slope.
